ANGLO-SAXON EXISTENCE.

Captain Mellon Says Liquor is Necessary to Preserve It.

VANCOUVER, Nov. 24.—The liquor commission concluded its session at six last night. The evidence in the afternoon was almost similar to that in the morning except that two or three prohibitionists were called. One declared that the liquor traffic should be put down with a strong hand, while Capt. Mellon declared liquor necessary to the existence of Anglo-Saxons. The commissioners left this morning for Pasadena, Cala.

Shot by His Own Child.

VANWERT, Ohio, Nov. 24.—James Neer, a farmer residing near this city, was fatally shot by his five-year-old son to-day. Neer had loaded one barrel of his shot gun, and as he was about to load the other barrel the child came up, and, unnoticed by the father, raised the hammer of the loaded barrel, when the hammer slipped from the child's fingers. The gun was discharged and the entire load of shot struck Mr. Neer in the face.

THANKSGIVING DAY.

The Americans Enabled to Celebrate the Occasion in Beautiful Weather.

The Yale-Princeton Football Match at Manhattan Field Draws Huge Crowds.

Latest Returns Show That Yale Has Twelve to Princeton's Nothing.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—The great home holiday of the nation, Thanksgiving Day, is being appropriately observed in this city to day. Business is almost totally suspended, and the stars and stripes are floating over the tops of all the public and numerous private buildings The day is clear, with crisp weather. In the morning services were held in nearly all the churches in the city. Many New Yorkers turned their thoughts from the transient joys long enough to attend the services and return thanks to God for the blessings of the past year. A feature of the day was the number of parades by associations and societies. Fish horns and trumpets, long abandoned silk hats, were resurrected for the day. The small boy is doing his best to make a pandemonium. He is only a trifle, however, when compared with the older brother, who poses as a ragamuffin and cuts up silly antics in the street. Of course the great attraction of the day is the Yale-Princeton football game. It seems as if everybody in the town was moving toward Harlem, where the game is to be played, as if New Oklahoma were about to be thrown open for settlement. The sharp, frosty air seems to impart a spirit to the ball cranks, and they are to be met on all the thoroughfares.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—There has seldom been a more beautiful Thanksgiving Day in Washington in point of weather. The closing of all the Government departments caused the streets to be thronged with people. Early morning services in all the churches were well attended. The President and part of his family, consisting of Mrs. Miller and Mr. and Mrs. Russell Harrison attended the Church of the Covenant; Mrs. Dimmick attended the Episcopal services Dr. Scott, the aged father of the President's late wife, was confined to the house by a severe cold. The customary monster turkey, which every year has been sent to the President from Rhode Island, was duly received. Vice-President Morton, who is here now for the session, observed the day with his family at his stately mansion on Rhode Island avenue. A feature of the day was the large number of marriages, more than fifty licenses being issued for this purpose yesterday alone. The football match between the Columbia Club and the Georgetown College attracted immense crowds.

MANHATTAN FIELD, Nov. 24.—Great enthusiasm reigns here. Five thousand people are already assembled to witness the Yale-Princeton football match, which is not to start for two hours. The fence surrounding the field is black with spectators, whose horns and calls are heard all over the place. The grand stand is comparatively empty, but already the uncovered stands are half filled. A number of tally hos are on the ground and carriages are arriving as fast as they can get through the gates. The day is a perfect one for football with one exception, the wind. The grounds are bright with sunlight and the rather cool atmosp here as a consequence is warmed. The breeze is a stiff one from the west, and if it does not moderate before the time for play is called, considerable will be gained in choice of position. The high bluffs at the west end of the field command a good view of the field and already twenty venturesome sports have climbed the rocks and sit sixty feet above the grounds waiting for the ball to be put in play. Their position is one which the wind makes anything but comfortable, but there is no enthusiast like the foot-ball fiend, and it is safe to say that before 2 o'clock, when thousands of spectators have massed themselves on the grounds, hundreds will be massed on the cliffs, tooting horns and waving flags with the rest of them. As early as 8 o'clock this morning the trains of the Sixth Avenue and Ninth Avenue roads, the only public conveyance to the grounds, were filled with people bound to the game. The gates were not opened until 11 o'clock, but for an hour before the streets were filled with a bowling mob of college boys, who made life miserable for storekeepers in the vicinity by their noise. The dark blue of Yale, the light blue of Columbia, the crimson of Harvard, the orange and black Princeton and the carnation, white of Cornell were all there and those who wielded the flags loudly demanded admittance. Inside of the enclosure a busy scene was being enacted. The field was all prepared days before, but the finishing touches were being put on before the admission of the crowd. When the gates were open, what a rush there was! At the admission gate it looked like a miniature Donnybrook fair; hats, canes, coats and flags to say nothing of buttons, were broken and torn, but the boys did not mind it at all. They were used to it; all they wanted was to get inside and they got, but not till they had been subjected to the by no means gentle caress of a dozen blue-coats, who handled the mob with consummate skill in squads of tens and twenties. The crowd emptied itself into the grounds and made straightway for the best positions along the fences about the playing field. Inside half-an-hour, the front places at the fences were filled, and an hour later the boys stood four deep, keeping themselves warm by frequent nips at suspicions looking bottles and keeping time white tooting horns and shouting themselves hoarse over the arrival of each tally-ho. The coaches lined up on the north side of the field directly in front of the stand "B," the seats of which were raised 25 feet above the ground. The police arrangements were of the best Inspector Conlin and 160 blue coats were on the field. They were well distributed and maintained good order. The playing field is guarded by 15 policemen, who will probably meet with the experience of last year. They will be frequently told at different periods of the game to "take off their hats," "sit down," "lay down," etc., by impatient college boys, who as a rule take special delight in showing their contempt for the blue coats. Shortly after noon the crowd in the grounds had swollen to enormous size, and but few seats were to be seen. The grounds contained many parties of gaily decked members of the fair sex, who entered with the boys into the enthusiasm of the moment.

The Princeton team left the Murray Hill hotel very quietly for the field a few minutes before twelve this morning. A big blue umbrella is causing plenty of excitement. It is carried by a stalwart Yale man, who with twenty five fellow students is making a circuit of the field. The noise that greets this travelling crowd is deafening. Twenty-five thousand people are present. The weather is growing colder and to keep warm it is necessary to keep moving.

There was nearly a panic in the grand stand before the game began. Somebody dropped a lighted match which fired some paper. There was a lively blaze, which caused some excitement. It was quietly extinguished by means of water from a neighboring restaurant. The score at the end of the first half at 2:58 p.m. was Yale 6, Princeton nothing. The game at 4:45 p.m. stood Yale 12, Princeton nothing.

GERMANTOWN, Pa., Nov. 24.—The football game final score was Pennsylvania 8, Wesleyans nothing.

DROWNED IN THE FRASER.

An Old Fisherman Believed to Have Met Death in the River.

NEW WESTMINSTER, Nov. 24.—The provincial police succeeded in finding a large quantity of goods yesterday on Lulu Island, stolen from Birrell's cannery on Thanksgiving Day. McCabe who is waiting trial in the liquor theft case is implicated, also L. Moor.

An old-time resident fisherman, John Wagner, is missing and it is supposed was drowned on Monday night. That evening Police Officer McInnis saw Wagner who was slightly inebriated. Thinking it better for him to be off the street, McInnis conducted him to the sitting room of the Caledonia Hotel, Front street. From there Wagner left for his fishing boat, as it was his intention to go out that night. He had been working for the C. F. Pretty Co., but at the wharf the boat and net still remain. From facts gathered, the only conclusion to be arrived at is that while under the influence of liquor he fell off the wharf attempting to reach his boat. The river will be dragged and every effort made to clear up the mystery.

PROSPECTING AND TRADE.

A Party Goes to View the Island—Nanaimo's World's Fair Exhibit.

NANAIMO, Nov. 24.—The steamship Brick left Nanaimo for Texada Island yesterday with a party of mining experts and capitalists on board, for the purpose of inspecting the claims recently bonded by Mr. Sutherland, mining broker of Fairhaven. Mr. A. Strong, editor of the Fairhaven Independent, accompanied the party. Mr. A. Raper has been instrumental in bringing this country to the notice of the persons interested. Providing everything turns out as satisfactorily as represented, extensive operations will be immediately commenced.

The meeting of the Board of Trade was to have been held on Tuesday night for the consideration of sending exhibits to the World's Fair, but through a lack of interest in the matter there was no quorum consequently no meeting. The only one who appears to be taking an interest in the matter is Mr. Pimbury; his display of preserved fruits is well worth sending. Unless more interest is displayed by the citizens in this respect Nanaimo will not be represented in the great fair at all.

Staff-Sergeant Instructor Reddings arrived from Victoria yesterday for the purpose of drilling the infantry corps, and will remain for two or three weeks. He put the redcoats through their drill last night and was satisfied with the way in which they went through the manœuvres.

A Snow White Buck.

BANGOR, Maine, Nov. 24.—Sporting men and lovers of freaks of nature in Lowell, Mass., will be much interested in the morning when H. S. Shaw, a real estate dealer, and W. M. Sawyer, cashier of the First National bank there, will arrive with four deer shot by them in the mountain woods. One of these is a big, snow-white buck, with a fine set of horns. There is no mark other than pure white, save on the face. The specimen is by far the finest seen here, so the old settlers and woodmen say, and one of the best ever shot in the country.

A RAILWAY WAR.

The Southern Pacific After the Scalps of Some of its Northern Rivals.

A Man Buries His Fifth Wife and is Suspected of Having Poisoned Her.

Two Southern Editors Fight—Strike of Choir Boys—Died at 110 Years.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 23.—The Southern Pacific railway company has taken important action in the matter of the boycott against the Northern Pacific, Central Pacific and Union Pacific in regard to the coast traffic. Orders have been issued from the Southern Pacific headquarters, announcing that after Dec. 31st, tickets, single or round trip, must not be sold, nor baggage checked through Portland or East Portland, Oregon, to points on the Southern Pacific road in Oregon and California via the North Pacific, via Pasco or Wallula Junction, or via the Canadian Pacific railway. The Southern Pacific will not honor any such tickets commencing January 1, 1893, unless sold prior to that date, nor will it accept any baggage for Portland under these checks. This boycotting is to operate on single tickets and round trips including those for return from California, through Portland, over the Canadian and Northern Pacific; also for passage from Portland or Tacoma to San Francisco by steamer with return by mail. Commencing January 1, the Southern Pacific will exact local rates from Portland on any tickets by way of the Oregon short line to points on its lines in Oregon or California, and on round trip tickets returning from California, through Portland, over the Oregon short line, it will exact its local rates to Portland.

A Theatrical Elopement.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—Frank Richards, know all over the country as an able manager of theatrical concerns, has eloped with Georgie Lake, the actress. Richards leaves a wife and child in Boston and Miss Lake leaves a husband here in New York. The husband is Julien Mitchell, the theatrical manager, and a nephew of Maggie Mitchell, the actress. Miss Lake is a sister of Jim Corbett's wife. The couple were, up to last night, at Woodbury, a little town in Jersey, about 25 miles the other side of Philadelphia. Mr. Richards was for several years night editor of the Boston Globe. He always bore an excellent reputation and was very popular with actors and actresses. He was married some seven years ago to a Miss Morris, of Chicago, who had left her home, where her family were quite prominent, to join Augustin Daly's Company here in New York. Miss Lake was at one time very well known on the stage, but for a little over a year, she has not been before the public. She had the best part in most of Hoyt's plays, and was considered a very bright woman. She is 25 years of age, and Richards is 37 years of age.

Formerly a Montreal Reporter.

PARIS, Nov. 23.—The man who confessed to having murdered and cut up the body of a woman found in an unfinished house on the Rue Botzaris, about four weeks ago, is believed to be crazy. The police have learned that he was formerly a reporter in Montreal. He is acquainted with many Paris newspaper men who say that he has pretended, off and on, that he represented a large firm of New York jewelers. While returning from London to Paris on Sunday he told several of his fellow travelers that he had a fine plan for imposing upon the credulity of the public. He would show, he said, how easily the cleverest people and police in the world could be fooled. He has been known in Paris as Robert Cuzman and Andrew Frederick.

A Whaler's Return

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 25.—The whaling bark John F. Winthrop arrived last evening from the Arctic, with 4900 pounds of bone and 16 barrels of oil, consigned to the Pacific Steam Whaling Co. Captain Murray learned on his arrival of the suicide of his wife, which occurred about two weeks ago. There are now only two whalers out which are expected back, the Emma F. Herriman and brig Hidalgo. They have been whaling in the Okotsk sea.

Aged 110 Years.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfd., Nov. 23.—Mrs. Johann Ward, of Carbonear, the oldest woman in Newfoundland, died on Saturday, aged 110. She was born in 1782 and having received a fair education has a mine of information on all matters transpiring at the end of the last and the early part of the present century. She retained possession of all her faculties almost to the moment of her death, and enjoyed excellent health.

Thought It Was the Devil.

CHICAGO, Nov. 24.—In the Esquimaux village in the World's Fair grounds yesterday, Estha, one of the maidens, was resting on a polar bear-skin, when a good-looking gentleman of color stepped inside the tent. A prolonged scream greeted his ears and Miss Estha fainted. When she recovered she said she thought the colored man was the devil. The nervous shock was so severe that she is very much indisposed.

Fished Up With a String.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 24.—E. L. Beard, of Locust, W. Va., has just recovered from a remarkable surgical operation performed at the Johns Hopkins University. On Sept. 2nd he swallowed a peach stone, which lodged in his œsophagus. Doctors Balcom and Harker cut into the œsophagus. Then a string with a snare arrangement was taken in at the mouth, swallowed, and fastened to the peach stone and the obstruction was thus removed through the mouth.

A French-Canadian, named Tremblay, belonging to Green Island, had a terrible experience on the Saguenay River lately. He had been to Chicoutimi with his schooner and a cargo of codfish, and, after disposing of the latter, started on his return to Green Island, having only one man to assist him in managing the schooner. Shortly after leaving Chicoutimi Tremblay slipped, and, falling on the deck, broke his arm, which incapacitated him from taking further part in working the vessel, which got caught in a storm below Ha Ha Bay, when his assistant was washed overboard and drowned before his eyes, without his being able to render him any assistance. Under the circumstances, in the midst of a howling tempest, and with night rapidly coming on, the utter helplessness and horror of his situation can be better imagined than described in that lonely region. Throughout the long, weary night the schooner was driven down the river before the gale, while the cold and pain of his broken arm rendered the unfortunate man almost distracted, but he, nevertheless, managed to keep the vessel from running ashore and when daylight broke he found himself off St. Etienne, where his cries eventually attracted attention and help.

John McGregor, one of the leading merchants of Winnipeg in the seventies, died the other day of Bright's disease. He had been ailing for only a few days. Mr. McGregor went to Winnipeg in 1871 and went into business as a general merchant, his stand being located on Portage avenue east. His place was named the "Thistle" store and the same name was afterwards given to the street. Mr. McGregor was familiarly known to the old settlers as "Thistle Jock." He was one of the founders of the St. Andrew's Society, and held high offices in the society at various times, only recently holding the position of bard. He was an unmarried man and about 55 years of age. He had no relatives in the country. He leaves considerable property.

Nagle is Free.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—A few weeks ago the authorities on Ellis Island were notified that a man named Nagle, who had been released from the Dublin prison, Ireland, where he had been serving a twenty years' sentence, was on his way to this country to join his mother and sister, who reside in Pennsylvania. As under the law no convict is allowed to land here, a strict watch was kept for him, and when the Guion line steamship Arizona arrived at her dock on Tuesday he was found on the vessel. It turns out that he is not by any means an ordinary convict, and he has put in a claim that he is entitled to land in America, inasmuch as he comes under the head of what is known as a political prisoner. People familiar with Irish history will recall the murder of Lord Cavendish in March, 1883, in Phœnix Park, Dublin. For that murder five men were hanged and many others sentenced to long terms of imprisonment on the ground of complicity. William Nagle was one of the men arrested for being an accomplice, and he was sentenced to 20 years' hard labor in the Dublin prison. Recently strong efforts have been made to obtain the pardon of the convicts, and Nagle was the first man who received a pardon, on condition that he would leave Ireland for America at once. He accepted and sailed for America. His claim that being a political prisoner he does not come under the provisions of the convict law, is also made by friends of his in this city and members of the Irish society, who called at Ellis Island yesterday. His brother arrived from Chicago and is engaged in enlisting the sympathy of the Irish societies of New York. In case Nagle is barred by the immigration authorities his case will be carried to the highest tribunal of the country.

The Hawaiian Commercial Company.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 23.—The directors of the Hawaiian Commercial Company met this morning and levied an assessment of $56 per share, payable within 30 days from date. This move on the part of the company was not altogether unexpected, as a number of shareholders suggested a levy of assessments at the annual meeting, which took place on the 15th. The amount, which it was then thought would be sufficient, was about $3, so that the decision of the directors will be rather a surprise, even to that portion of the shareholders who are prepared to meet the demand. It costs the company $50,000 a month to run it plantations, and the crops for the past year and those expected for the coming year and a halt do not begin to cover a quarter of this expense. The indebtedness at the end of the last fiscal year amounted to $300,000 in one sum alone, besides interest now due on the $900,000 of bonds outstanding. This $300,000 is in the form of a mortgage on the new crop, which will not begin to cover it, and the consquence will be that the company at the end of the comisg year will be as badly off as ever.

The Ulster Hand-weavers.

BELFAST, Nov. 23.—The election of Grover Cleveland has revived the hopes of a class of the Irish working people whose industry has been practically wiped out by the McKinley bill. The industry thus affected was that of the linen hand-weavers of Ulster, to whose hands the most beautiful designs and textures of linen in existence are to be traced. Notwithstanding the introduction of machinery the hand-weavers were still enabled through the demand for their work to make a decent living, although thirteen shillings a week was considered enough for that, and that sum was about as much as they could earn. The McKinley bill cut such inroads into their profits, that seven shillings was as much as they have made recently. The possibilities of the repeal of the bill has started new hopes among these people.

CAPRIVI AND BISMARCK.

The German Chancellor Criticizes His Famous Predecessor.

BERLIN, Nov. 23.—Chancellor von Caprivi addressed the Reichstag to-day in behalf of the Army bill. He said that the Government proposed the bill well knowing the dangers to the empire that would be involved should it be rejected. The Government had been discussing the proposed changes for nearly three years, and every year of delay was a year irrevocably lost. "Our relations with other nations," added the Chancellor, "are normal. Nobody menaces us and we menace nobody. We abhor preventible war; we do not admire the smallest piece of French territory. The next war, should war unfortunately break out, would be much more difficult, because the French army and fortresses, especially Paris, are in a much better condition than in 1879. Germany's condition after such a war, even if followed by 85 years of peace, would be infinitely more intolerable than now." Caprivi continued: "The relations of Russia and France have doubtless been growing intimate for two years past. We must be prepared for fighting, in case of war, on two fronts, and we are not now prepared. We have lost the military supremacy of Europe since 1870, because the vanquished always prepare for war more ardently than do the victors. We rely on our allies, but we must endure the chief burden of the preparation because neither Austria nor Italy has to fight on two fronts."

The Chancellor added: "The House is doubtless aware of the public indignation excited by the avowal of Prince Bismarck that he had framed a dispatch from Ems in 1870, with the view of precipitating a war between France and Germany. In order that the House and country might judge of the accuracy of the statement, the Foreign Office has furnished to me from the archives a telegram from Privy Councillor Abeken to Prince Bismarck, dated July 13, 1870, stating that His Majesty King William complained of the obtrusive behavior of the French ambassador on the promenade, and also a letter of His Majesty, ordering Privy Councillor Abeken to telegraph to the Baron de Werther that His Majesty was indignant at the imputations of the Duc de Gramont, and of the French ambassador Benedetti, in regard to his (the King's) conduct, and that His Majesty reserved to himself the right to take further steps. These facts," added the Chancellor, "prove that His Majesty, the late King and Emperor, was not the old weakling that Prince Bismarck has been lately suggesting, and also proves that Germany in 1870 did its utmost in the direction of conciliation." This statement of the Chancellor caused a decided sensation in the Reichstag, being the first open and official reply on the part of the Government to Prince Bismarck's charges. It is believed that Prince Bismarck will accept the challenge, and take his seat in the Reichstag to answer Caprivi.

Cubb's Cough Cure

ANTISEPTIC.

Do you know what an ANTISEPTIC is? We will tell you. It is a medicine or application which arrests decay or putrefaction and heals. The application of antiseptic preparations has made it possible for surgeons to do what was never dreamed of, because antiseptics stop all formation of corrupt matter. We do the same in our Cough Cure.

A Cough or other Lung Disease speedily causes decay. The best proof of this is the putrid phlegm which you spit up. Cubb's Cough Cure IMMEDIATELY arrests this decay and the cure follows with surprising rapidity. If you have a COUGH, or your child has whooping cough, ONE DOSE, or at most TWO will make you our friend.

NORTHWEST GOVERNMENT.

The Montreal Star Tells a Strange Story of Trickery at Ottawa.

MONTREAL, Nov. 23.—The Star, commenting on the calling together of the Northwest Assembly, says it can now give publication to the startling information that, in consequence of the recent squabble and its results, the Dominion Government has, by order-in-council, withdrawn from the Assembly the increased powers given to it during the last two years, and all money voted by parliament for the expenses of government in the territories and for schools has been transferred to the credit of the authorities at Ottawa. For the past five week all the expenditures have been made by cheques signed by Lieut.-Governor Royal and his secretary. This piece of information has been hitherto kept in the dark in Mr. Cayley's interests, but in view of the complete failure of his Government, there is no longer any reason for this secrecy and the facts are given to the public. It is reported, moreover, that the Dominion Government has disallowed the ordinance providing for the Executive committee, as it went further than their legislation contemplated.

REGINA, Nov. 23.—Ex Premier Haultain stated to day that the strength of parties in the Assembly remained unchanged since the Wallace election, being 14 to 12. It is rumored, however, that the Opposition will number 18 when the House meets.

METEORS TAKING EXERCISE.

Strange Phenomena Witnessed Throughout the States Last Night.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Nov. 24.—The city was visited last evening by a shower of meteors, which illuminated the heavens for three-quarters of an hour.

GALESBURG, Ill., Nov. 23.—We are having a meteoric shower. Shooting stars are flying around in all directions.

DENVER, Colo., Nov. 23.—There has been a considerable display of meteors here to-night, filling the whole sky with streaks and streams of fire. They came from all directions, and were quite startling in their number and brilliancy. The streets have been crowded with people with their faces turned up to the sky, and there has been considerable excitement throughout the town and around about. Many people think it is the comet come to destroy the world, and all the topers in town are swearing off, joining the churches, and learning how to pray.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—The heavens were filled with celestial fireworks to-night, and those who kept their eyes and minds on things earthly missed a beautiful and interesting display. All over the sky bright spots and streaks of light were darting and streaming. They came from all quarters and darted in every direction. Some gleamed suddenly and brilliantly in the darkness. Others flashed across the sky leaving behind them a streak of reddish light that often seemed to extend across the firmament and last until the brilliant head and body were swallowed up in blackness. Astronomers were not plentiful on the streets and an authoritative opinion on what "the meteors" can mean could not be obtained. Some people suggested that they were the particles left straggling behind the comet and that we are now passing through the stream of particles.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Nov. 23. — The heavens above this neighborhood have been ablaze with flaming and shooting meteors to-night. The mysterious celestial messengers have been darting hither and thither through the stars in great numbers and with great brilliancy, interesting the whole town and country, and alarming quite a number of timid persons, who think the end of the world is nigh and feel that they are likely to be among the goats at the final count.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 23.—There was a meteoric shower to-night about 9 o'clock. This shower was predicted for the 27th instant.

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—Something in infinite space went to infinite smash to-night between 6:30 and 7:05 p.m. Stars dropped from the sky and on every side the brilliant meteors could be seen falling. The display was largely confined to the north and east. The sky was clear and the night cool and dark.

The Manchester "Martyrs."

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—The Irish Nationalists of this city will gather in force at Central Music Hall to-night to participate in exercises in memoriam of the Manchester martyrs, Allan, Larkin and O'Brien, who in spite of the protests of the civilized world were hanged at Manchester twenty-six years ago to-day for the accidental shooting of police sergeant Brett, while endeavoring to affect the release of one of their comrades who was in custody. Ex-Congressman John A. Finerty will be the orator. There will also be a big demonstration in New York, with ex-Congressman McAdoo as principal speaker.

Fashionable Wedding.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Nov. 23.—The marriage of Miss Mary Caroline Washburne, daughter of United States Senator William D. Washburne and Mrs. Washburne, to Mr. Albert Francis Baldwin, of New York, will be solemnized this evening at the Church of the Redeemer. A very large number of invitations have been issued, and the edifice will be crowded with society people from different parts of this state, New York and Chicago.

Rev. Sylvanus Lane

Of the Cincinnati M. E. Conference, makes a good point when he says: "We have for years used Hood's Sarsaparilla in our family of five and find it fully equal to all that is claimed for it. Some people are greatly prejudiced against patent medicines, but how the patent can hurt a medicine and not a machine is a mystery to me."

Ran Away With a Cowboy.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—A London dispatch says:—"Wild West Bill," an alleged cowboy, now living in Chicago, and whose real name is said to be William Ruhmor, figures as one of the principals in a divorce case just tried before Sir Francis Jeune, and in which a decree was granted to-day. The case was an extraordinary one in many particulars. The aggrieved husband was William H. Schoolcroft, an American by birth, who came to this country three years ago, and is now a minister of the Church of England. According to his story he met his wife on Regent street, London, while on a visit to this country in 1881. She was then leading a questionable life. He took pity on her and finally made her his wife. Some little time after he took her to the United States, where her actions were not altogether those of a reputable woman. Later they went to Heidelberg, Germany, where the husband engaged in theological studies, but here her conduct with the students of the University became so exceedingly questionable that they were compelled to leave the place and return to England. Finally they separated, the husband allowing her one hundred and fifty thousand dollars monthly, until he received a letter from his wife saying that she never proposed to live with him again. Evidence taken on commission in the United States, and which was submitted to the court, proved that the wife was living with "Wild West Bill" as his wife in Chicago, and upon this showing Judge Jeune had no hesitation whatever in granting the decree.

Sensational Elopement.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—An eloping couple whose disappearance from London, England, has created something of a sensation in certain circles of that city, are being searched for high and low in this city and Brooklyn. The man is W. Graves, until recently chief superintendent of the Hampstead workhouse, while the woman in the case is Miss Annie Lyons, assistant matron of the same institution. A few weeks ago Graves applied to the Board of Guardians for a week's leave of absence, and on the same day Miss Lyons left the institution for the purpose, as she said, of spending the afternoon with some friends. Neither of them, however, returned, and investigation developed the fact that after staying at the Charing Cross hotel as man and wife for a couple of days, they had taken steamer for this country. Graves's wife, who is matron of the institution, has been compelled to resign her appointment as an outcome of his action.

Quarantine Revelations.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—Miss Adelaide Merres, who was employed on Swinburne Island during the recent cholera scare as nurse, is about to sue Health Officer Jenkins for wages due her. This suit is to be followed, Miss Merres says, by one for damages. Miss Merres detailed some of the abuses practised on the island. For the 13 days she was there the patients, she says, could not leave their beds, as there were no clothes in which to dress them. There was plenty of clothing sent down by charitable people, but it was not given out. She had seen many bundles of clothing in the parlor of Superintendent Butler's house, but none of it reached the hospital. Miss Merres also said that supplies ordered and paid for by the quarantine commission never reached the island. Miss Merres said that for several days after she got there she had to bathe the male as well as the female patients. The regular nurses were generally drunk and gambled regularly.

Will He be Pardoned?

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—Up to noon today nothing had been heard from Springfield to confirm the report that Governor Fifer proposed to make his Thanksgiving memorable by granting a free pardon to Oscar Neebe, one of the convicted anarchists, and in behalf of whose release petitions have been signed by thousands of citizens, including the editors of every Chicago newspaper, the jurors that convicted him, and every other man connected with the trial, save Judge Gary, the civil magistrate, and Julius S. Grinnell, the states attorney who prosecuted the case. Several times before the friends of the imprisoned man have been absolutely sure that he would be speedily pardoned, but each time he has suffered keen disappointment.

Dedicated to the Army.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—This is the third and last day of the National Salvation Army congress. The new association hall at Twenty-third street and Fourth avenue was consecrated this afternoon with the usual vociferous exercises of the organization, and in connection with the event Commander and Mrs. Ballington Booth formally dedicated their baby daughter, which is scarcely two weeks old, to the Salvation Army work of the future.

The Monetary Conference.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 23.—The international monetary conference assembled this morning, and a lengthy statement of the points which in their judgment should be discussed was presented by the delegates from the United States. Official stenographic reports of the proceedings are being made, but they will not be given to the public until after their presentation to the respective governments represented.

ANOTHER BEHRING SEA STORY.

The Seattle Telegraph yesterday had the following editorial article on the Behring Sea question:

A report comes from Washington to the effect that there is a probability that the Behring Sea case will be speedily settled and upon lines that will be fully satisfactory to all concerned. It is alleged that Lord Salisbury more than a year ago instructed the British minister that England was prepared to concede the claim of this country as to the sea being a closed one in consideration of certain valuable concessions on the Atlantic seaboard in connection with the fisheries. It is further stated that Mr. Harrison was ready to assent to such an arrangement and that it was on the point of being carried into effect, when Mr. Blaine interposed and for no other purpose than to keep the question open for political purposes threw obstacles in the way. The story is told with a great deal of circumstantiality, and if true shows that there has been an undercurrent in the Behring Sea negotiations, of which the public has been kept in ignorance. There is nothing at all unlikely in this, and it illustrates the folly of newspapers going into heroics without provocation. Last spring, if one should judge from some of our papers, we were about to give Uncle Bull a sound thrashing, and according to the Canadian papers, we were about to receive a dose of the same medicine ourselves. When the Telegraph expressed its doubts as to whether the war would extend beyond the newspaper offices, some good contemporaries actually doubted its loyalty.

We have not seen the report to which the Telegraph refers, and therefore have no means of knowing its source, but we are very much inclined to set it down as a "fake." The fact is that neither Canada nor England has any reason to ask Uncle Sam for "valuable concessions on the Atlantic seaboard in connection with the fisheries." If there are any such concessions to be granted, they must be granted by Canada. Perhaps the inventor of the story would like to have it believed that Canadian sealers will be ordered to keep out of Behring Sea in return for the United States Government restraining its citizens from poaching in the eastern Canadian waters. That would be just a little too much like a man paying a thief to refrain from stealing his property. It seems to us that the story on which the Telegraph bases its moralizing must be considered apocryphal.

CHINA'S SIGNIFICANT ACTION.

Our dispatches yesterday stated that the British Government had sent to Pekin a complaint in regard to the violation of a treaty right by the Chinese Government. This complication has arisen in rather a curious way. In article 3 of the commercial treaty concluded between the United States and China in 1880 it is provided that "His Imperial Majesty the Emperor of China hereby promises and agrees that no other kind or higher rate of tonnage dues or duties for imports or exports or coastwise trade shall be imposed or levied in the open ports of China upon vessels wholly belonging to citizens of the United States or upon the produce * * * transported in the same from one open port in China to another, than are imposed or levied on vessels or cargoes of any other nation, or on those of Chinese subjects." As all the powers having treaties with China are entitled to "most favored nation" treatment, British vessels were able to claim the same privileges as United States vessels under this clause. So it came about that British vessels were allowed to carry grain from one treaty port to another on paying a nominal fee, called "huchao," for a permit. Two British rice companies were in the habit of transporting rice from Shanghai to Tientsin under such permits on practically equal terms with a Chinese concern called the China Merchants' Co. The three companies had maintained a combination or pool for a long time, but recently this was broken up and a war of rates followed. It so happens that the head of the Chinese company is Sheng Taotai, who is also head of the customs at Tientsin, and this gentleman suddenly decided to withdraw from his competitors the privilege of transporting rice under the permit system. This is the action complained of in Lord Rosebery's note. Apparently the Chinese Government contends that it has a right to withdraw the privileges granted by the treaty of 1880 for the reason that the United States has violated the treaty by its Chinese exclusion act. The treaty being practically abrogated, it argues, the other treaty powers as well as the United States lose the privileges extended under the most-favored-nation clause. This, we believe, is the first overt act by which China's Government has indicated that it considers the treaty with the States abrogated by Chinese exclusion, and it is somewhat curious that British instead of United States citizens have been affected by it. Probably Lord Rosebery's note will result in a fuller statement of its position from the Pekin Government.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Colonist seems to have at last received some light on the House of Lords question, but it is only a glimmering. No longer able to ignore the declaration of Lord Salisbury that the "upper" house will balk the will of the people by rejecting all Home Rule legislation, our neighbor takes refuge behind the plea that the will of the people has not been plainly enough expressed. That is exactly the plea Lord Salisbury puts forth, and we want no better proof than it of our contention that the popular verdict may not be so promptly enforced in Britain as the Colonist wished to have its readers believe. As to the force of this plea which his Lordship puts forth there is no need to speak; its absurdity is apparent on its face.

The official count of the vote for presidential electors in Ohio shows a somewhat peculiar result. Danford, a Republican elector, headed the poll, and next to him comes Seward, a Democrat; then follow the other Republican electors. Thus Ohio will cast 22 votes for Harrison and one for Cleveland. The division of any state's contingent in the electoral college is a very unusual occurrence, as ordinarily the vote goes all one way or the other. The 21 Republican electors who fell below Seward had only about 1300 majority over the other Democrats, so the Republicans very nearly lost their hold on Ohio. This overturn of a state which was wont to give 20,000 to 30,000 majority was one of the most remarkable incidents of the election, and gave very striking evidence of the extent to which the revolt against the McKinley tariff has gone.

A good deal depends on the point of view. Mr. Blake recently made a speech on Home Rule at a banquet in Bristol, and two newspapers of that town offer comments which vary considerably. The Mercury said: "Mr. Blake delivered a calm, unimpassioned, powerful and well-reasoned speech on the problem of Home Rule." The Times and Mirror expressed its opinion of the speech thus: "Mr. Blake is the Canadian gentleman who got himself elected as the Nationalist member of an obscure Irish constituency. His speech was dull, dreary, delivered with turgid rapidity, and at times it was scarcely possible to follow. This kind of fluent gabble is the result of born conceit, and of all conceited individuals a conceited Irishman is the most insufferable. Mr. Blake spoke with no authority, and even the friends of his cause could have obtained little instruction from his remarks."

THE CAPTAIN'S STORY.

The Commander of the River Ganges Gives His Version of the Trouble.

Captain William Budge, of the British bark River Ganges, stated to day to a TIMES representative that the newspaper articles which had appeared respecting the trouble on his ship were very one-sided and by no means fair to him. A great deal had been made out of what was in reality a mere trifle. Captain Budge said:

"These men shipped at Rio, and we were 14 days in port before sailing for here. All that time there was not a word about bad bread, nor was there one word about it on the passage. Only when we reached these waters did they begin to make trouble. My ship has been 17 months from home; we have been on the River Platte, at Rangoo, at Rio and along the South American coast. That bread was kept in tanks, one of which was not properly secured, so that the bread became damp. That bread if properly tanked will be as sweet and fresh at the end of three years as the day it was baked. I simply say that the men had no reasonable ground of complaint. To be sure, one of them showed insubordination on the voyage, and it was necessary to keep him in irons for 24 hours, but, you see, we cannot allow the men to run the ship altogether. I have been in the employ of the owners of the River Ganges 15 years and never once knew them to place inferior provisions in their ships. The food is always of excellent quality, but, as I explained, if not properly kept will spoil. Had that tank been well fastened the men could not have had a single circumstance to complain of; as it was they had exceedingly little to grumble at. I ordered fresh bread immediately we reached Esquimalt, but of course we had to wait until we came round to Victoria to fetch it aboard.

"The whole sum and substance of the matter is this. These men know that they can get higher wages here, and they trumped up this bad bread story as an excuse for leaving the vessel. I have offered them increased pay to return, but they refuse. I don't want to part with them. The ship has been re-provisioned and they will be well treated—as they were on the voyage north. As to the mutiny story it is quite untrue; there was no mutiny. Why, in England this affair would not even have got into the papers. The whole thing is a mere trifle, and I am sorry so much has been made of it, as it will cause further mischief in England if the case is copied into the English papers, which will be all the more unfortunate as there is not one title of reason for complaint on the part of the sailors or for so much discussion in the newspapers."

THE CHURCH CASE.

A Non-Suit—Mysterious Disappearance of a Page of the Specifications.

When the court assembled this afternoon in the case of Macdonald against the trustees of the Pandora street Methodist church, Mr. Bodwell, counsel for the plaintiff, asked his lordship to allow Mr. Fell's motion for non-suit made at the opening of the case for the defence.

Mr. Bodwell stated that a matter occurred just before the adjournment which came with a great deal of surprise to all concerned on the plaintiff's side of the case, that there was a mystery in this case which must be cleared up, and which he believed would be cleared up, but the circumstances at present did not place them in a position to explain. How, or in what manner that missing page came out of the specifications is a mystery; the specification was bona fide lost, and did not turn up until last night. What had happened to it in the meantime could not be explained. There was one man perhaps, the attesting witness, Mr. Hewitt, who might throw some light on the subject, but he is now in Alberni. In view of the existing circumstances therefore he considered that it would be wasting his Lordship's time and that of the jury until that mystery was cleared up. He, for himself, did not wish to be connected with a case in which he would have to put in evidence that it was not genuine or was not seemingly genuine. He has every reason to believe that there was some mistake; something inexplicable connected with this affair; but he had no reason to think that any one who had instructed him, either client or witness, had anything to do with the change that was made in the specification.

His Lordship allowed the non-suit and said he considered that Mr. Bodwell was exercising very wise discretion. He would enter the non-suit without prejudice to any other action that might be entered. And the same rule would apply to the defendant's counter-claim. The documents in the case were ordered to be empounded in court.

Mr. Bodwell, of Bodwell & Irving, and Mr. Walls appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Fell and Mr. Hall for the trustees.

The mystery to which Mr. Bodwell referred was connected with the specifications. There were three copies, and they were all produced at the arbitration on the claim of Burkholder against the trustees of the church. After that one of them, the original, mysteriously disappeared and did not turn up until last night. Mr. Thomas Hooper, the architect, swore positively that Macdonald, the contractor, had placed his signature on the lost copy underneath Mr. Burkholder's signature, and mentioned as the attesting witness a Mr. Hewitt, a school teacher in Alberni. Messrs. Macdonald and Burkholder both swore positively that Macdonald's signature was not on the lost document. When the document was produced in court this forenoon, it was seen that a page had been removed or lost and it was on this page that the signatures were, according to Mr. Hooper's evidence. How this page disappeared is a mystery which cannot now and may never be explained.

PLEASED EVERYBODY

The Entertainment by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Y.M.C.A., a Great Success.

There Was a Large, Fashionable and Appreciative Audience Present.

The entertainment last evening at the Victoria Theatre, under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A., was a success, financially and otherwise. One of the most fashionable audiences of the season filled the theatre from orchestra to dome. The Lieut.-Governor and Mrs. Dewdney were present, and nearly every family of note in the city was represented. The band of H. M. S. Warspite supplied the orchestral music in a pleasing manner.

The whole programme was enjoyed, some of the numbers very much indeed. No one could complain of not getting enough for his money, as it was midnight before the last number was finished. Twenty-nine numbers on one programme is a pretty large contract for any company to tackle; and however good the selections is very apt to try the patience of the audience very severely.

Mr. W. R. Higgins made a happy choice in the pieces which he essayed, for they suited his voice well.

The clearness and power of Mr. Higgins's voice astonished the audience, and his friends were delighted to notice the great improvement that had taken place in his voice since he last sang in Victoria. His efforts were decided triumphs and have established him as one of the city's first-rate vocalists. It is to be hoped Mr. Higgins will be heard very often henceforth at the concerts. Mrs. W. R. Higgins played the accompaniments for her talented husband with much skill.

Undoubtedly the best selections of the evening were those by Messrs. J. G. Brown and Albert Hawthorne.

Mr. Brown in "The Village Blacksmith," Weiss's setting, proved himself a inger of great expression, and gave a most graceful and thrilling interpretation of the grand old song. He was deservedly encored, and responded in "The Bugler," a composition eminently suited to his manly, ringing voice. Mr. Brown is a singer of whom Victoria may be proud.

Mr. Hawthorne's magnificent bass voice found the limits of the Victoria theatre very quickly. It is a voice that would sound at its best in such a vast auditorium as the Albert Hall, London. Clear as the tones of a bell, even in the lowest registers; consummately modulated and controlled, equalling in many of its notes the sharply-cut tones of a trumpet, it is a voice well worthy to give proper expression to such songs as "The Storm Fiend." Mr. Hawthorne won the entire confidence of the house as to his ability as a singer. He should be heard often at Victoria concerts.

Mr. Aloys Werner in the old, old favorite "Salve d'Amore," had a good many things against him, but acquitted himself satisfactorily.

Miss Harrison earned a nice bouquet of flowers by singing "The Message." Miss O'Neill was heard to advantage in "Down the Shadowed Lane She Goes."

Miss Brady's selection from "The Prisoner of Chillon" was long, but the capital manner in which it was given redeemed that fault. Miss Brady is improving as an elocutionist. Her encore "Hunting Life" was very much enjoyed.

Miss Rhodes pleased in her song "Fiddle and I."

Mr. Ernest Wolff plays the violin with skill and good taste, but his selection last night was rather too classical and abtruse to be enjoyed by the major portion of the audience. Miss Mouatt gave a sweet rendering of "The Arrow and the Song," with a chorus of three ladies.

The rifle drill by thirty young girls, commanded by Miss May Gowen, awakened unbounded enthusiasm. The little misses went through the exercises with precision and grace, the physical drill being especially well done, and if the young ladies only keep it up daily they will certainly become splendid looking women, as these exercises are calculated to impart that graceful carriage so much envied.

The statuary deserved all the applause bestowed. The different "pieces" were well chosen and those who supported them proved the good training they had undergone. The grouping, draping and pose of the various pieces left nothing to be desired.

Messrs. Kent and White in the song "Excelsior" made a good showing.

The audience evinced their pleasure throughout the entertainment by hearty applause and everyone seemed very much pleased with the treat provided.

An Enjoyable Hop.

The Iolanthe Club gave a very pleasant dance and social last night in Harmony Hall. There was a very good attendance despite counter attractions, and all enjoyed themselves very much. During the evening light refreshments were served. Another success has been added to the record of the Iolanthes.

The Mud Scrapers.

The street committee have still got a gang of men at work scraping the mud off the streets. There are so many men at this work that the corporation wagons are unable to carry the mud away. In some places the mud is left to be rescattered over the streets. A couple of extra carts are needed to assist in the work.

Female Opium Smuggler Caught.

U.S. Deputy Collector of Customs Barnes boarded the steamer Spokane, running on the Kootenay river, at the boundary line on Sunday morning and commenced the customary searches for contraband opium. In a stateroom occupied by Mrs McClaggert, fifty pounds of unstamped opium were found concealed between the mattresses. The woman and two men whom the inspector has reason to suspect, were taken into custody and will be brought to Cœur d'Alene.

For the Bay City.

The steamer Walla Walla, Captain Wallace, sailed for San Francisco this morning with the following cabin passengers from this port: W. E. Woods, wife and child; Dan. Mills, A. Dutton, H. H. Nagle, Mrs. B. Tomkins, Mrs. W. Phillips, R. P. Ramage, J.H.Payne, H. Chaffer, Mrs. M. Cameron, Miss S. Cameron, Miss C. Cameron, J. R. Thomas, and Thos. Irving. Altogether the Walla Walla had 1400 tons of freight and 132 passengers.

Pemberton-Reid.

The Toronto Mail of Nov. 17th says: St. George's church was the scene of a very pretty wedding yesterday afternoon, that of Miss Mab Bell, daughter of Mr. P. W. Bell, of the Hudson Bay Co., to Mr. Fred B. Pemberton, C.E., of Victoria, B.C. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Canon Cayley, assisted by Rev. A. J. Broughall, of St. Stephen's church. Chrysanthemums were used largely to decorate the church. The bride was attired in white brocaded satin, with tulle veil, and wore a pearl and diamond star, the gift of the bridegroom. The bridesmaids were Miss Jessie Bell, sister of the bride, Miss Minnie Temple, Miss Marion Wilkie, Miss Blanchard, Miss Nellie Dupont, and Miss Gertrude Dupont. The happy couple left town last evening for Victoria, B.C.

The Mathilde's Experience.

The little schooner Anna Mathilde arrived here this morning, twenty-six days from Coal Bay, with ten tons of Alaska coal for ballast and samples, consigned to owner, C. D. Ladd. Mr. Ladd had a partner in the north coast trade, and his name was Dr. Ballou, says the San Francisco Examiner. He represented the firm in the north during the summer, and did a great deal of business for himself. By cutting rates he had little difficulty in disposing of the entire stock he took up with him, and then he dissolved partnership by going to Victoria and selling the skins that he had received for the goods. He made no settlement and Mr. Ladd considers himself fortunate to get his schooner back. The Mathilde was found at anchor in Coal Bay entirely deserted. Captain Ewatt and a crew were sent up on the Thistle, and the schooner restored by them to the owner. Captain Ewatt brings the welcome news that the bark Merom arrived at Karluk after a fifty days' passage, instead of going to the bottom, as was generally feared. Capt. Bjorn attributes the Memo's bad behavior and excessively long passage to her being short of ballast to an extent that caused him to put her before the wind every time it amounted to more than an ordinary sailing breeze.

YOUNG BUT VIGOROUS.

A Firm of Soap Manufacturers Who Are Bound to go Ahead

One of the youngest, but also one of the most vigorous, industries in the city is the soap manufactory of Messrs. Findley & Desbrisay, situated on Warren's wharf, James Bay, off Montreal street. A member of the TIMES staff visited the establishment yesterday afternoon and found everything in full blast, turning out the saponaceous detergent. Although the premises are not large there is a very large amount of business transacted.

Mr. Findley, on ascertaining the visitor's purpose, courteously supplied all the information desired. Although the firm started in business only a few weeks ago they have met with the most flattering encouragement, and orders are at present pouring in upon them at such a rate that early enlargement of the present establishment must follow. The capacity of the factory is 1000 pounds a day, and the F & D brand is now handled by all the leading grocers and meets with ready sale, with a steadily increasing demand. The firm have a very complete outfit for their purposes. Their main vat has a capacity of 400 gallons. The steam is supplied by a steel jacket boiler built by the Albion Iron Works, and there is a full outfit of the patent regulation cutters, stamping blocks, moulders, planers and so on. The process of manufacture employed by Messrs. Findlay & Desbrisay is known as the cold process.

The firm determined on the start to put their stamp upon no article that was not what it claimed to be; only the purest and best materials are used by them. Selected tallow, the purest, expressed cocoanut oil and the very best lye. United to first-class materials is the most painstaking care in manufacturing the product. All the soap made in the factory is under the personal superintendent of one or other of the firm. They make four special lines.

Electric soap, which is their prime product, the soap they place first on the list; blue mottled, a particularly pretty and attractive soap neatly cased and a certain seller in any store; toilet, a delicately perfumed, and very satisfactory article that produces instantly a rich, soft, creamy lather, delightfully soothing to the skin, and taking out the dirt splendidly. Lastly, the laundry soap. This soap is warranted to make the dirt fly every time, with the minimum expenditure of power on the part of the user. Cocoanut oil enters largely into the composition of all these soaps.

The firm claim to be able to offer the people of this province a soap in every way equal to the best eastern products, and, let it be noted, at as lower price. Findley and Desbrisay are quite willing to let their goods speak for themselves and feel confident of the result in competition with any soap. Every cake is warranted full weight as well as first quality. They are put up in neat wrappers, an ornament to any grocery, and in the soap dish on any wash stand bureau in any hotel would attract the guest's hand every time.

Messrs. Findley and Desbrisay are, naturally enough, very much pleased with the confidence bestowed on them and the liberal prtronage with which they have been favored, and as soon as possible they will move into more extensive premises and make a strong bid for the export as well as home trade. They sell their goods by wholesale only; all the leading groceries in the city retail for them, and their soap is to be found in use in all the principal hotels. Animated as they are by the desire to produce a first-class article at a reasonable price, they are eminently deserving of success.

Do you want any jewelry, silverware or clocks? If so call on Kingham & Minor, at 49 Government street. They are making big reductions in their stock.

Stopped the Work.

Mr. T. D. Conway, of the Dominion Government telegraph service, returned to-day from Wellington. He left Victoria a few days ago with the object of establishing stations along the new Comox telegraph line. The wire for the line is all up and all that remains to be done is for the wire to be connected with the stations as soon as the latter are completed. The Dominion Government, however, does not appear to be in any hurry to get the line at work, as when Mr. Conway reached Wellington he received a dispatch from the Government to discontinue the work. If the work is delayed very long it will mean a delay until next summer.

The Thermopylæ Arrives.

The British bark Thermopylæ, Capt. Winchester, arrived at the Outer wharf to-day from Hong Kong. She made the trip across in 44 days, which is considered good time. The voyage, besides being a fast one, was pleasant and uneventful. She left Hong Kong on the 10th of October, having a north east monsoon to contend against. For the first ten days east winds and rains were encountered, and then south-east and north-west gales were met. The Thermopylæ came in from the meridian in 13 days. She hass 1100 tons of rice and 100 tons of mats for her owners, Hall, Ross & Co., of this city.

The Assault Was Mutual.

Albert Johns and Christo Dalo were each fined $5 for driving over James Bay bridge faster than a walk. Sailor John O'Neill, of the Nymphe, was fined $1 for breaking a window at the Occidental Hotel. The court ordered O'Neill to pay $7.50, the cost of the window. The case of Jos. Quadros, charged with assaulting Jno. Paxton, was dismissed. It was proved that the assault was mutually committed. The dog-biting case was further adjourned till Saturday. Chan Cheun, the Chinaman bitten, is almost well.

HE DID NOT "OWN UP."

Wandeck, the Alleged Embezzler Denies That he Admits His Guilt.

Florian L. Wandeck, the alleged embezzler, denies the statement in the morning paper that he "owned up" to Detective Anthony, of San Francisco. Wandeck says: "I made no such statement to Detective Anthony or anyone else. I have nothing to own up. I claim that I am not guilty. What I said to Detective Anthony is that I might return to San Francisco to facilitate matters. I gave no promise. And before I can definitely tell you whether I will waive extradition I must see Mr. Bodwell, my lawyer."

There is $200 reward offered by the Morse Detective Agency of San Francisco. It is stated that Khan & Co., of San Francisco, foot their losses at $25,000. When arrested Wandeck had $115 in cash and a railway ticket for which he paid $67. The story of how Wandeck got over to the Mainland remains a secret. There are clues, and the clues point to facts, the development of which will make a story more sensational than the Wandeck affair.

INDIA RUBBER.

Some Facts Regarding Its Production in Nicaragua.

India rubber is obtained in Nicaragua, says the Journal of the Society of Arts in London, from the siphonia elastica, a tree from fifty to sixty feet in height, and no India rubber has as yet, it is said, been obtained from any other source. The native name for rubber is ulli, and the United States consul at Managua states that that this was a term applied to it by the Aztecs. The Spaniards called the collectors of it ulleros. Some authorities in the country claim that the rubber tree of Nicaragua is not the siphonia elastica, but the castilloa elastica. There are several methods of obtaining the rubber employed by the hunters, but the principal are those described below. The large rubber trees are generally felled, and incisions about 2 inches deep and 2½ inches wide at the top are made round the tree at distances of about a foot apart, and the rapidly-flowing milk collected, through funnels formed of leaves, into calabashes, each capable of holding from three to five pints, or in holes made in the ground and well lined with leaves. Another method employed is to cut into the tree near the top and down to its base one, two, or three vertical channels, according to the size of the tree, through the exterior bark into the lactiferous vessels, and frequently through these vessels into the woody fibers, then cutting numerous oblique channels on each side of and connecting with the vertical ones. This work requires ladders, which the rubber hunters improvise either by using the vines on the trees which they intend to scarify or cut from the numerous meshes of vines found handy in the forests; by these the ulleros ascend the trees and commence their work near the top, and continue cutting one or two vertical and numerous oblique connecting channels uninterruptedly until they have completed them. They work rapidly in order to keep in advance of the fast-flowing milk. The milk is conducted from these channels by the means referred to above. A third method used by the rubber hunters is to scrape off the outer bark of the trees with a machete, commencing eight or ten feet above and extending down to within one or two feet of the ground. Clay alone, or a vine and clay, are placed around the tree, inclined so as to form a ridge about two inches high on the lower edge of the scraped or bark-removed part of the tree. This guard is sufficient to direct the rapidly-flowing milk or emulsion into the receivers at the foot of the tree. In order to make the milk coagulate rapidly the Indians or rubber gatherers make a decoction from the vine which they find twined around the trees, and this has been found the most efficient means of producing coagulation. This decoction on being added to the milk, in the proportion of one pint to a gallon, coagulates it to rubber, which is made into round flat cakes. Sometimes the fresh milk is mixed with the coagulating decoction, and then heated up to between 160 and 170 deg. Fahrenheit in the calabashes, and with a result apparently of a more elastic and less gummy India rubber than that obtained by any other process. As the number of rubber trees becomes less the methods employed in gathering the rubber become different. A few years ago the trees produced from ten to twenty gallons of milk, and the rubber hunter would then take the milk and put it into a large hole in the ground and make a cake of it, known as torta; but now that the trees do not yield a great quantity of milk, the plan of making a hole in the ground is fast being done away with. The best rubber is considered that which is taken from the long channels, which the ulleros cut in the trees, after the milk has been allowed to remain in the channels from one to two weeks. The rubber is known as borricha, and it is considered to be superior to all others because it contains less water. The natural supply of India rubber is yearly decreasing in Nicaragua. The cause of this is the habit of the natives, until lately, of cutting down the trees, thinking they would thereby secure more milk. The government attempts no supervision of the forests; anyone may cut the trees, and great destruction is caused by the young trees being tapped as well as the full-grown ones. Consul Newell says it is an incontrovertible fact that, so far at least as Nicaragua is concerned, the rubber tree is susceptible of cultivation, and in the district of Managua there are large tracts of land suitable for growing rubber trees. The rubber section of Nicaragua is that portion extending from the mountains in the vicinity of Chontales, the northeastern part, to the Atlantic coast, and it is the opinion of those persons in Nicaragua who are interested in rubber production that the cultivation and improvement of rubber plantations would be very profitable.

The Explanation.

I had an experience in sudden rise of price last Sunday morning that was positively startling. It was in a hotel in the city where I was breakfasting late—very late. I had ordered among other things an omelette, and had eaten it with much pleasure, for it was a good one, and for which I proposed to pay 35 cents, as the bill indicated. When the check was presented, however, I noticed that the price was 50 cents, and I expostulated. "Quite right, sir," said the head waiter, who had come to the aid of his subordinate, "Omelette is 35 cents at breakfast time and 50 cents on the lunch bill. You ordered during breakfast time, when it was 35 cents, but you ate it during lunch, when the price was 50 cents."—Boston Home Journal.

Profit Sharing in England.

[The Draper's Record.]

It happens unfortunately that a year in which the principles of profit-sharing were to be put to such an extensive test would have turned out one in which depression in every department of trade has been so severe. It will be remembered that about a year ago announcements were made in many directions that schemes of one kind or another, by which certain portions of the year's profits would be distributed among employes, would be tried by way of experiment. So far as is known there has been nothing startling in the way of results. There have been distributions of bonuses of four, five, or even 10 per cent., but in every case, while the principles involved are admitted to have worked with every success, the real value of the test has been marred by the circumstances of the time. In one case only does there seem to have been avowed dissatisfaction. The prospect of participation in profit has failed to bring about a noticeable increase in attention and care given by the workers to their work, by which it was anticipated that profits would increase in proportion. This, however, we hope is altogether an exceptional case and one in which the employer will reverse his finding at the end of another year. A distribution has just been made in our own trade at the rate of 4 per cent. on the year's earnings of the employees, a result which we venture to think, in view of the present condition of trade, not only satisfactory but encouraging.

FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE.

One of the Most Famous Women in the English-Speaking World.

Correspondence St. Louis Republic.]

Miss Florence Nightingale, although she has lived an absolutely retired life for the past 20 or 30 years, is still perhaps the most popular woman in the English-speaking world. No one has ever taken her place in the hearts of the British people, and now scarce a day passes but she receives a pathetic and often ill-spelt letter from some man or woman with whom her name has remained a sacred tradition of health-giving strength and charity.

Born seventy-two ago in Florence, where her father and mother were spending the winter. Miss Nightingale's childhood was passed in Derbyshire at Leathurst, a beautiful old manor house where she now spends most of her time. Deeply impressed with the want of sanitation and general neglect of the laws of health visible in the lives of those laborers and country work people with whom chance had made her acquainted, she made up her mind to seriously try and improve so deplorable a state of things, and with he father's consent accordingly went to Germany and spent some months in the great nursing convent of Kaiserworth on the Rhine, and then went on to Paris and thoroughly investigated all the leading philanthropic institutions in France.

She had already received a very thorough training as a nurse, and had managed with admirable wisdom a small sanitarium in London, started and financed by herself, when the year 1854 saw the outbreak of the Crimean war. The inefficiency and mismanagement of the military hospitals aroused much indignation both at home and abroad. Lord Herbert, the Secretary of War, and an old friend of the Nightingale family, wrote and asked his young friend if she would consent to take charge of the band of trained nurses who were being sent out to Scutari by the patriotic fund. Curiously enough his missive crossed a letter in which Miss Nightingale offered to go; so, only waiting in order to procure absolute necessaries, she and her band of 37 devoted helpers started on their way.

The state of things that Miss Nightingale found at Scutari defies description. Everything was chaos, and the existing medical authorities did not know where to turn for the simplest necessaries. At that time she was described as being "a tall and graceful-looking woman, with small, well-shaped, soft, sympathetic brown eyes, and with a firm courageous expression of countenance." She had an enormous influence both with the men and at headquarters, and her energy and intelligence saved thousands and thousands of lives. The strain and terrible effort undergone by her during the two years that she remained in the East told upon her health, and she has been more or less a confirmed invalid ever since. Still from her sickroom she labored on unceasingly, and it is undoubtedly due to her that the present English system of trained nurses was established.

The £60,000 which the nation subscribed to her in gratitude for her great services was entirely devoted by her to the formation of an institute for the training and employment of nurses, and she has always taken the most vivid interest in all that concerns her beloved profession. Miss Florence Nightingale has for many years never seen a stranger but on a question of strict business. The various small pamphlets she has published, "Notes on Nursing," "Notes on Hospitals," etc., have been widely read, and even to this day involve a considerable amount of correspondence. Whenever a new sanitary army reform is contemplated her advice is always asked by the authorities at the War Office and great deference is paid to her judgment.

BRISTOL'S WESTERN MAIL.

What Came of Printing an Interesting Item About Spinsters.

Philadelphia Ledger.

Communications have lately been pouring in in interesting numbers upon the two youths who act respectively as postmaster and postmaster's clerk at the postoffice in Bristol. These missives were from many lone bachelors in the far west, desiring the postal officials to procure for them the names and addresses, and, if possible, without regard to cost, the photographs of some of the many maidens of whom these same bachelors understand the population of the town is chiefly composed.

A story concerning the astounding numbers of maidens of an uncertain age who resided on a certain street and within the confines of one short square in Bristol had appeared in the Record, and the cause of the influx was at once explained. This article had been circulated far and near in the Record and copied from it, and thence from one paper to another, until the fame of that Bristol square was widespread. Many a lone bachelor, sitting partnerless by some Western hearth, devoured the lines eagerly until their meaning so grew upon him that he could stand it no longer, but poured forth his desires for a wife to comfort his loneliness to the Bristol postmaster.

The Bristol postoffice is a modest institution, and was at first so embarrassed by these appeals that it knew not what to do, but, finally, reflecting upon the wretchedness of those lone western bachelors, its large heart so overflowed with sympathy that it bethought itself of taking the matter in hand. Upon consideration it was decided to post the letters in some place not conspicuous, but where the searching eye of the Bristol spinsters would perchance light upon them. For some time after the posting of these letters the Bristol maidens had much need of stamps, etc., and dropped in at the postoffice for every mail. In the course of a few weeks there was such an increase in the western mail coming to Bristol that an additional bag had to be provided for its accommodation. At mail time a continuous line of bashful spinsters from the street in question was observed entering with expectant faces and issuing with either blushes or with sighs.

The residents of Bristol know not how to account for the presence of such innumerable hosts of unmated maidens, unless it be that the buildings on the street, in so many cases resembling with their porticos and friezes the temple of Diana, have inspired in the female Bristol breast a desire to follow the chaste goddess' example, but soon, evidently, this condition of affairs may be ameliorated.

Buried Five Wives.

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 24.—Fremont county, Ia., is excited over the mysterious death of the fifth wife of Wm. Mayhar. Mrs. Mayhar died suddenly on Oct. 20th at Riverton. She had taken three four-grain capsules of quinine for toothache, and in less than an hour was dead. Rumor had it that Mayhar had made away with several wives and the coroner determined to hold an inquest. The body of No. 5 and the stomach, brain and lungs were sent to the State chemist for analysis. The stomach contained strychnine and the jury to-day rendered a verdict in accordance with the facts. Mayhar is sixty years old and a native of Ireland. When twenty-one years old he married a California woman, who soon died of consumption, Mayhar says. In 1868 he married a Mrs. Emma Travis, in two years she was taken ill and in ten days died. Three months later Mayhar married Mattie Hoon, a Sidney, Iowa, woman. She lived twelve years. The Mayhars moved to Axtelle, Kansas, and one morning number three died while at breakfast. After the lapse of three years Mayhar married Miss Damb of Sidney. They went to Axtelle and there wife No. 4 died of spinal trouble, according to Mayhar's story. Then Mayhar married Mrs. Erbeck, a widow with two small children. The death of wife No. 5 is related above.

Highwaymen Doing Business.

LIMA, O., Nov. 24.—A gang of desperadoes created terror in the city this morning by playing highwaymen and having a shooting encounter with a posse of police. G. H. Anspaigh was held up near the Chicago and Erie railway track. A man shoved two revolvers under his nose. He knocked the revolver near his face away, and brought his lantern on the man's head. The blow knocked his man to the ground and Aspaigh ran. Several others fired at him. Another man named Romer was next attacked. He was severely choked and his pockets rifled. He is in a serious condition. By this time the police were in pursuit. In the encounter the chief of police was injured. All the highwaymen escaped. Obtaining reinforcements and ammunition they started again in buggies to scour the country for the robbers, who were all armed. A hot battle may result.

THE BENEFITS OF VACCINATION

TO THE EDITOR:—In view of the fact that vaccination is now, despite the commendable stand made by Messrs. Lovell and McKay, a sine qua non in the schools, and as there are probably many parents who are wavering between submission to the edict and defiance, the following may be of interest. It gives a very fair example of what a man risks when he has his child vaccinated. My quotation is clipped from your well-known English contemporary, the Pall Mall Gazette, which, whatever else it may be, is certainly an impartial newspaper:

"At the meeting of the Bromley, Kent, Board of Guardians yesterday, a case of death from lockjaw following vaccination was reported. A child named Grace Edith Buckwell was vaccinated by the medical officer on September 10th, and appeared to be going on satisfactorily, but unfavorable symptoms set in, and the child subsequently died. The medical officer, Dr. Codd, reported that the child died from lockjaw which followed upon and was due to vaccination. It was, he said, a most unfortunate occurrence, as it could not fail to strengthen the ill-founded prejudice against vaccination which existed in the minds of ignorant persons."

Dr. Codd is distinctly a humorist albeit his humor is of that unconscious kind which is so entertaining. After certifying that the death was due to vaccination, he rounds upon all persons who object to submitting themselves and theirs to a like risk as "ignorant persons" and stigmatizes their objections to the medical rite as "ill-founded prejudice." I wonder how much stronger ground for objection Dr. Codd would require.

We have all heard of Admiral Nelson applying his spyglass to his blind eye and exclaiming: "The signal to return. Where? I cannot see it." In very much the same way the average official doctor, looking straight at the obvious disaster says: "The death signal. Where? I cannot see it." He is neither blind nor dishonest. He is merely suffering from that mental obliquity which seems inseparable from an official connection with vaccination.

I have selected the above case for two reasons. First, because it is unusual to find a doctor admitting vaccination as a cause of death, and second, because Bromley in 1881 was the scene of a smallpox epidemic, and when out of 43 cases there were 16 of the confluent type, and all were vaccinated. (Lancet, August 27th, 1881.) Can it be wondered at that since then Bromley has not been brought forward to any marked extent as an example of the benefits of vaccination. WM. GREIG.

Merely a Typographical Error.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—President-elect Cleveland's trip to Exmore, Va., serves to recall a number of fishing stories told of him. One of these was related to-day by Joe Jefferson, the actor, who is now in Washington. Mr. Jefferson, who fished a great deal with Mr. Cleveland during the summer months, says hardly a day passed that stories did not appear in newspapers concerning their marvellous success. Both Mr. Cleveland and Jefferson were frequently astonished to see how the fish grew in numbers after they were landed. "At last I stumbled on the process of multiplication," said Mr. Jefferson. "Mr. Cleveland and I were fishing late one hot afternoon, much disgusted with our poor success, when a solitary correspondent rowed alongside our boat and asked how many fish Mr. Cleveland had taken that day." "We caught three yesterday and two to-day," was the reply. When I looked up next day's paper I was startled at a big display headline announcing that Mr. Cleveland caught 32 fish in two days.

Refused to Sing.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 24.—The University of Pennsylvania choir-boys filed into chapel as usual this morning and took their assigned places, the organ played the prelude to the opening hymn and the students rose to their feet. But not one opened his mouth, the verse was played through without a sound save that of the organ. This performance was repeated with every hymn and the members of the faculty were highly indignant. The faculty refused to grant the choir-boys certain privileges, and they took this means of squaring accounts.

CAPTAIN BENNETT'S STORY.

His Efforts to Save the Ship Ericsson From Foundering Were Fruitless.

Sails Set to Take Her off Shoal Continually Torn to Shreds by the Wind.

Captain Bennet, master of the wrecked ship Ericsson, came in from the West Coast on the tug Lorne at two o'clock this morning. Since the accident on Saturday morning Capt. Bennett and his men have been living on Enterprise Island. They had all the provisions they needed, but the shelter was not as good as men could wish for as the wind was blowing and the rain falling continually.

Captain Bennett called at the TIMES office this afternoon and told his story to a reporter.

"After leaving San Francisco," said the captain, "moderate weather was encountered until Cape Flattery was reached. There the ship got into a terrific N. E. gale which shifted shortly afterwards to the south west. This was on Friday afternoon. During Friday night the Ericsson was driven 27 miles to the north, and on Saturday morning at 2 o'clock she struck on Entrance Island. A tremendous southwest wind was blowing at the time and as fast as the sails could be made to take her off shore, they would be torn into shreds. A dozen times were the sails arranged, only to be torn to pieces, and the big ship was driven right up on the rocks."

Most of the crew made a rush for the shore, but Captain Bennett and a couple of the men stayed with the ship and dropped both the anchors. The ship remained as she was until morning, when the weather having moderated, the captain and the rest of the crew also left the ship. Twenty-four hours after she struck her masts began to fall and she began to break up. The men got to work, saved the sails and what else they could, while the captain went to Cape Beale to telegraph to Victoria for assistance. The wires, however, were down and his message did not reach the city. The captain says he knew that he was in Barclay Sound, but could not make out his exact position on account of the fog. When he left Enterprise Island at four o'clock on Wednesday afternoon, what was left of the Ericsson was scattered along the shore. He thinks he can save some of the wreckage and has telegraphed to San Francisco for orders.

The Ericsson was built as a steamer in New York in 1852. About twenty years later she was made into a ship, and has been knocking around ever since. She was owned by W. A. Bull, of San Francisco, and was uninsured. Her crew consisted of 16 men all told. "The crew," said Captain Bennett, "were not able to handle her."
